

NEWS RELEASE

Two new restaurants and one nail salon to open on Drottninggatan

Hufvudstaden is welcoming three new brands to Drottninggatan in Stockholm. Norwegian café concept Backstube, poké bowl restaurant Poh Keh and Nail Democracy will all open in the spring of 2022.

Drottninggatan, will during spring, open two new restaurants and one new creative nail salon. Norwegian Backstube, which will open on Drottninggatan 92-94, is a mix of café and bakery where fresh buns and bread are freshly baked and served every day. Next door, at the same address, Poh Keh is opening, offering Hawaiian poké bowls packed with healthy ingredients and made from scratch.

Nail Democracy is opening at Drottninggatan 82. Their main driving forces are good working conditions, responsible product and material selection and with a high degree of creativity in terms of treatments and salon environments.

- "To keep taking positive steps forward right now, despite the state of the world around us, is definitely our way of making life a little more colourful for people. We are very happy to be able to open yet another salon with high service standards on Drottninggatan," says Silvia Adlesic Holmgren, CEO and co-founder of Nail Democracy.

All three of them to open up during spring 2022.

- "We are looking forward to welcome two new restaurants to Stockholm and Drottninggatan. Both Backstube and Poh Keh does take away for people on the run but also seating's for eating in. We are also happy to welcome Nail Democracy, a new brand with high ambitions within the beauty business", says Emanuel Westin, Head of Business development retail, Hufvudstaden.
